

WE'RE SERIOUS ABOUT YOUR HEALTH.

Here's what we're doing.

Wearing our PPE

When it comes to preventing the spread of disease, rest assured that your orthodontist has always been strict on universal precautions including the use of masks, glasses, gloves, sterile instruments and devices as well as clean and disinfected environmental surfaces.

Added cleaning

Frequently touched surfaces such as door handles, chairs, desks and bathrooms are cleaned and disinfected often.

Removing other risks

Other objects that may be difficult to disinfect, such as magazines, reading material and refreshment stations, may even be removed all together. Your orthodontist might also ask you to brush your teeth at home before coming to the office.

A new process

Screening and triage questions, waiting in your vehicle versus the waiting room, checking your temperature or asking that you follow social distancing and infection control etiquette may occur. Some orthodontists may recommend against bringing companions to appointments, unless necessary.

What you can do

- Reschedule your appointment if you're sick
- Don't bring extra family members to your appointments if it's not necessary
- Wash your hands often
- Practice social distancing and avoid close contact
- Cover your coughs and sneezes
